

When was the last time a kabariwala visited your house to pick up your stock of newspapers and old bottles? This time don't let him go—catch him and interview him. Find out what he does with all the stuff he collects. Trace the path of the junk he carries in his jute bag. What kind of materials does he buy? Remember it's a competition. The best interviews get prizes and will also be published.

But wait a minute... How do we rate an interview? You may interview the kabariwala as for long as you wish, but only send us five questions you feel got the best answers. Along with the answers, of course! Remember, the key is to be as simple as possible while asking the trickiest questions. Do let us know about your encounter with the kabariwala.

Warning:
Don't tamper with the original responses of the Kabariwala

Hey folks!

Its time to pick up your pen and pad, and write to us – not just a letter but an entry for a competition.

This is your chance to become an

Investigative ECO-journalist.

Send in you entries to panditji@cseindia.org or Environment Education Unit,
Centre for Science and Environment,
41, Tughlakabad Institutional Area, New Delhi- 110062